Re-Engaging Delaware County's High School Dropouts: A Summit for Community Action

October 20-21, 2010
Penn State-Brandywine

On October 20-21, the Delaware County Regional Career Education Partnership, the Delaware County Workforce Investment Board and Youth Council are sponsoring a county-wide summit, Re-Engaging Delaware County's High School Dropouts: A Summit for Community Action. This summit will bring together all key stakeholders, including youth, families, educators, service providers and businesses to discuss best practices and strategies for engaging the County's high school dropouts with work and educational opportunities.

The Summit will be held at Penn State-Brandywine

Visit Summit Info for more information.

Participation is limited to 80 people.

NOTE--There is a registration fee of $15. Scholarships are available for those unable to afford the registration fee.

The Delaware County Youth Council-

The Youth Council is responsible for developing a comprehensive workforce investment strategy for youth programs and services. It identifies youth programs, develops requests for proposals and makes recommendations to the WIB Executive Committee on the allocation of funds for youth services. The Council also oversees the performance of youth programs and services.

Membership on the Youth Council include members of the WIB who have a special interest or expertise in youth policy; representatives of youth services agencies, including juvenile justice and local law enforcement agencies; representatives of local public housing authorities; parents of eligible youth; former participants of youth programs; and representatives of organizations with experience in youth activities.
